W. C. T. U. Notes

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union held an interesting and profitable meeting last Wednesday p. m. with Miss Caldwell. An inspiring program was given from material sent out for the observance of National Constitutional Prohibition Day. An extract from Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens last public address was read entitled "Why we expect to succeed" in which occur these sentences: "Some glad day she states in which today is entrenched the liquor system, will rejoice that it has been abolished. Science, philanthropy, reform, religion and the business world are testifying against the liquor traffic."—We believe—that by 1920 the United States flag will float over a nation redeemed from this home-destroying, heart-breaking curse."

At this meeting further arrangements were made for the usual hot dinner served by the Union on the 22nd of Feb. at the Coffee Club. It is planned to seat 150 guests at a time.

The Pastor has received from the East a copy of Darius Cobb's famous portrait of "Master." This portrait on parchment paper will be used as an illustrated text for the sermons both morning and evening. The morning theme will be "Behold The man," in the evening, "He overturned their Tables," both talks taking up a phase of Christ's life frequently overlooked. Talk to the boys and girls on "Stickers and Quitters."

Campbell Defeats Fast San Jose Highs

The Decisive Score of 35 to 21 Tells the Tale

We did it! And everybody is proud of every mother's son who helped. One such victory covers a multitude of defeats. But our boys have not met with defeat this season.

As is customary our boys started out strong running the score to 13 to 5 early in the first half but took a bit of listlessness later letting the visitors get six more before the half was over. Bydekarken who had been playing strong at guard was hurt during this half which took the spirit out of the boys for a time.

The second half opened with a rush of trick plays in which the team work was perfect and our boys made eight points in rapid succession. Ed. Kennedy was in the game in Bydekarken's place and performed very well. Much credit is due to "Slim Jim" Fabbinger who surprised his opponent several times by the quick and opportune spurts on long passes. Leland Lancaster kept his man too busy to throw many goals and took occasion to throw for himself altho not in his particular line. The local strongmen were Clare Bryant and Captain Righter who danced some fancy steps about the goal posts throwing several spectacular goals.

Probably the hardest game of the season is yet to come when our boys meet San Mateo. Boys, get busy! The championship of Santa Clara county and the peninsular district of the state league are in sight. Keep your eyes on the ball and watch your man!

Beverly's House Party

The High School Auditorium was packed Saturday evening to witness the production of "Beverly's House Party" which was put on by several of the High School students.

The play was the work of Miss Ruth Hamilton and was a very creditable production for an amateur.

Evelyn Spellman as Lady Bennington, was quite the "grand dame" and much at home in her situations. Ruth Hamilton took the part of Beverly Gail, Lady Bennington's niece, and the hostess of the "house party." She did very well and carried out the character successfully, only needing a little more animation.

Gay Winston, the American Girl, was well pictured by Luella Thompson, whose only difficulty seemed to be in repressing that irrepressible smile of hers.

Myrtle Dunham, Marjorie Duncan and Virginia Isham had minor parts which they filled very satisfactorily, the audience wishing they appeared oftener.

Ralph Gardner, as Philip Bennington, put considerable vim in his part and made things move.

Clare Bryant quite looked the part of the dignified Englishman and Eduard Van de Gon, The Count, was a very good substitute for the real thing.

The chief criticism of the performance was the lack of affection displayed by all the lovers, and the son, returned from "years spent in India," otherwise the affects were very good.

Highland Linen correspondence cards are tasty. Smith has them.

ARE QUICK TO HEAL

MODERN BULLETS MORE HUMANE THAN THOSE OF THE PAST.

Soldiers Are Not Long Absent From the Front, Even When They Would Be Considered Quite Seriously Injured.

The bullet covered with hard nickel now in use makes the surgeon's task very simple, as a rule. Formerly, when large bullets of soft lead were used, the soldier's lot was not a very happy one. These often broke up inside the body, shattered bones, and frequently remained embedded in the muscles, bones and other parts.

The result was slow-healing, festering wounds which kept the soldier ill for a long time. The modern long, slender bullet generally passes through the body without doing any vital injury. Even when it goes through the intestine, the stomach, the kidney, etc., the wound closes up without any very serious after-consequences. A good deal, however, depends on circumstances. If the soldier's stomach is empty—as it generally is in a battle—so much the better for him when he gets a bullet through it.

When he is tired and half starving, however, the shock is very great, and he may become utterly helpless from a slight wound. A curious fact, difficult to explain, is that a bullet fired at a range of 300 to 600 yards has more penetrating power than one fired at a range under or over that distance. In the former case it passes through the bone without doing very much damage; in the latter it shatters the bone and makes recovery slow. A ricocheting bullet causes a very bad wound as a rule. Small as it is, if a bullet strikes a large bone, like the hip, it gives a blow like that of a crowbar.

We are hearing a great deal about dum-dum bullets in this, as in all wars, both parties making charges against one another. The probability is that neither side is using them. The bullet now in use consists of a core of lead covered with a hard nickel case.

The Pied Piper.

Recently occurred the anniversary of the visit to "Hamelin Town in Brunswick," in 1274 of him "who, for the fantastical coat which he wore being wrought with sundry colors, was called the Pied Piper." Old Versteegan told the story in prose of how "the Pied Piper, with a shrill pipe went through all the streets, and forthwith the rats came all running out of the houses in great numbers after him; all of which he led into the river of Weaser, and therein drowned them."—It is to Macready's young son that we are debtors for the poem, for it was he who persuaded Browning to weave the prose into poetry to amuse a sick child. Its preservation was due to a lucky accident, for in Browning's next collection of poems was a blank page or two to be filled, and "The Pied Piper of Hamelin" was just big enough to do it. So if in his life the Pied Piper destroyed hundreds of children his biography has amused thousands.—London Chronicle.

Armenia.

May we call the region in which the Russians are attacking the Turks Armenia? For convenience, certainly; but, as Sir Charles Elliot points out, strictly speaking, "Armenia" does not exist. The name is absolutely forbidden in Turkey, and all maps marking any district as Armenistan are confiscated. Then there is the rival name of Kurdistan, also unofficial. Kurds and Armenians being mixed up, one may unofficially call portions of Asia Minor Kurdistan or Armenia, according to one's sympathies. The Armenians themselves do not use the name given them by friendly foreigners. They call themselves Haik, and after their country Haikistan—tracing their descent from Haik, the grandson of Japhet.

Convenient Rule.

The editor of a newspaper published in central Pennsylvania tells of articles that he frequently receives from a certain citizen. They are all ways pertinent and worthy of publication, says the Evening Post Saturday Magazine, but they are punctuated in a most peculiar way.

Meeting his correspondent one evening at a friend's house, the editor said, "That was an excellent letter I got from you this morning, and I am going to print it Saturday. But tell me, what rule do you follow for punctuation?"

"Why," said the gentleman, "the same rule that I learned when I was a boy. I put a semicolon every twelve words, and two commas between each pair of semicolons."

His Hobby.

"I can say this much for Dobson—you never see him wasting his time in a foolish argument."

"That's because Dobson takes no interest in the subjects most men argue about. Just wait until somebody comes along and tackles him on the subject of Egyptology. Then you'll hear an argument that will make politics, religion and the war in Europe pale into utter insignificance."

Fundamental Principles of Health

By ALBERT S. GRAY, M.D.

(Copyright, 1914, by A. S. Gray)

RADIANT ENERGY AND DISEASE

So tenaciously do the legends of our forefathers cling to us that even yet it is the common belief that all our ills are of external origin, the result of some malignant power which takes possession of us by capture and can be overcome only by the introduction into our bodies of the appropriate antagonist in quantity sufficient to neutralize and beat down the unhealthy conditions. Every discovery seems to prove that the truth is always simple but because our powers of observation are poorly trained and our knowledge of the universe is very slight we go blundering along, ever seeking some miracle for the relief of our ills, blind to the fact that health is simply a matter of being in accord with the balance of the universe. The truth of this is proved by the fact that in the final analysis all our diseases are found to originate in some deficiency, because we ignore some simple natural requirement which breaks the normal continuity of the vital chain binding every living unit into a nicely balanced reciprocating machine.

"The scientific world has come to believe that the primary sources of natural energy by virtue of which the universe keeps going over immense periods of time are to be found not in the great masses of glowing matter dotting the heavens, nor in any of the relations between energy and matter in bulk, but in the reactions between the individual atoms out of which bulk is made up." Just so, too, our health, happiness and efficiency are the direct products of the natural operation of the individual cells of which we are composed. And anything which disturbs the natural relations between these minute individuals is certain to result in some form of variation which we usually call ill health.

We have noted that variations in plant growth take place under different colored lights because plants have the inherited capacity to develop normally only under white light. But there has been very little research work done along these lines for the purpose of determining why these variations occur. Probably the most significant facts in this connection are to be found in the discoveries of Dr. J. R. Green, who in 1897 showed that light had an appreciable effect on the formation and action of the enzymes in plants and that the red and blue rays favored the formation of the enzymes, while the green, the indigo and the violet, and especially the ultra violet, rays destroyed them. He also made the striking suggestion that "vegetable structures have a power of absorbing radiant energy which is not connected with the presence and activity of chlorophyll."

The very recent discoveries of Mme. Henri and others as to the effects of light rays on micro-organisms are steps along this line which promise much relief to suffering humanity by emphasizing the effects on light rays on life in general.

We know tuberculosis to be essentially a deficiency disease, the ultimate result of insufficient food and air and light. The only known successful method of controlling the disease consists in supplying the missing factors by a simple substantial diet and living out of doors. Prevention, not cure, is the modern weapon against this scourge, and prevention consists in sufficient food, air and light.

If all living things are subject to the same laws then it would be reasonable to infer that Doctor Green's hint that "vegetable structures have a power of absorbing radiant energy which is not connected with the presence and activity of chlorophyll" may have a parallel in the human body, and perhaps we too, may have a power of absorbing radiant energy not connected with the presence and activity of hemoglobin but oxygen carrying substance analogous to chlorophyll in the plant.

A method of treatment by means of prolonged exposure of the naked body to solar rays has been found particularly helpful for tuberculosis of the bones, joints and ganglia. The new treatment is called heliotherapy and has been found not only particularly helpful in tubercular diseases, but has also met with marked success in other diseases.

In a general sense the healing virtues of sunlight have been recognized from the dawn of human history and are embodied in a thousand myths and legends, but the facts have been steadfastly ignored, while the whole world has sought for the fountain of youth. It has remained for our own generation to discover that direct sunlight is not merely beneficial in stimulating the general health and raising the tone of mind and body, but that, as we shall later see, it possesses a therapeutic value in certain ailments which borders on the marvelous and forces us more and more to recognize that disease is the result of social and economic conditions.

Neutral Territory of Moresnet

TUCKED away in the very heart of central Europe, where the vast armies of half a dozen nations are fighting the biggest war in history, is one of the smallest and strangest territories in the world, known officially as the Neutral Territory of Moresnet. An encircling ridge of high mountains veritably buries it from neighboring civilization and culture and leaves it in a little world of its own. But it is not so strange. It is the fact that, for nearly a century, the inhabitants have never experienced the feeling of being under the rule of an emperor, king or president. They are independent, governed by no one, at liberty to do as they please, for, after the Vienna congress of 1815 Moresnet was granted an independent constitution, guaranteed by Prussia and Belgium. Only 1½ square miles in extent its land worth, perhaps, is greater per square foot than that of any other sovereign state. In the interior is one of the richest zinc mines in the world, which years of active working have failed to exhaust.

A large percentage of the inhabitants of the territory are miners. Few venture beyond the confines of the quiet little valley, though the bustling commercial city of Aix-la-Chapelle is but five miles away to the northeast, and Liege lies only 28 miles westward.

MAP OF MORESNET

The population has grown since 1815 from 250 to more than 3,000.

How It is Governed.

The local government of Moresnet during its hundred years of life is interesting. When Belgium and Prussia each said "hands off" in 1815, each country secretly intended to keep one eye on the territory. This policy was carried out until 1841. Under the arrangement the neutral state was subject to a joint government by both nations. In 1841 Moresnet received an administration of its own. A burgomaster, or mayor, and a council of ten members was the form of rule selected.

Since 1841 the state has worked out its own affairs. Nominally the burgomaster is appointed alternately by Belgium and Prussia, but in reality and practice the Moresnetians choose their own executive. The council members obtain their offices at a village election every year.

The inhabitants so inclined decide individually whether they will perform military duty for Prussia or for Belgium, and the result has been a nearly even division, with Belgium getting a shade of advantage. It is interesting to speculate just how many fathers and sons, brothers and cousins are now fighting against each other, and how much consternation must have been caused in Moresnet by the German declaration of war on Belgium.

The inhabitants also decide whether they will accept the jurisdiction of Prussian or of Belgian courts. As a result, the wrongdoers of Moresnet choose in such a way as to suffer as lightly as possible.

Moresnet boasts of no customs or tariffs. Belgian and German goods can go in or out of the territory without restriction. However, to prevent goods of one nation from being stored in Moresnet for a couple of days and then sent over the other boundary freed from duty, both countries keep customs officials on the watch.

Land taxes are also divided between Belgium and Prussia.

Within the last 15 years Moresnet has shown an inclination to depart from her long policy of noninterference, and has harried Moresnet with two main objectives. She has sought to compel the people of the little territory to declare their desire to become German subjects, and has also striven to drive the government of Belgium into surrendering its rights. Far beyond any expectations, Moresnet citizens have staunchly upheld their independence, maintaining that the compact between Prussia and Belgium should never be severed. Belgium has also remained stolid, even refusing to relinquish her claims in exchange for a substantial indemnity.

There have even been some in Belgium whose doctrine it was to surrender Moresnet, with the natural expectation that Germany would, by reason of the concession, support Belgium in more important matters. A favorable treaty was not thought unlikely.

In 1905 German papers suddenly declared that both Moresnet and Belgium were willing Germany should assume control of the little territory. It was even intimated that Belgium was willing to sell her rights. But the declarations were baseless.

Two years later the people of Moresnet answered Germany in a more material way. A plebiscite, somewhat in the form of a straw vote, was held, and nine-tenths of the voting population were for annexation to Belgium in case annexation to one or the other country was demanded. With the exception of the burgomaster, a German, the whole communal council voted with the majority.

Such a state of affairs before the present war leads to varied speculation as to the ultimate disposal of the property when peace is declared.

No Coinage and No Police. Moresnet has no distinctive coins or legal tender. The specie of Germany and Belgium is freely exchangeable.

There are no police to patrol Moresnet, for there are no such menaces as burglars or other criminals. A small number of town guards are named each year by the society, but their duties are never strenuous.

The town has a polyglot population of German, Flemish, Dutch and Belgian families, but the modern educational system instituted several years ago has since tended to weld the people into either Germans or Belgians. Because of this mixed population, Moresnet has come to have several names. Although these designations do not mean the same in the several languages, the French and Belgians generally refer to the place as Moresnet, the Germans call it Altenberg, while the Flemish and Dutch people dub it Kelmis or Kalmis.

Precedents Here and There.

English mental processes found an illustration in the apology ex-Premier Balfour felt called upon to make at the lord mayor's banquet in London Monday night, when he proposed a toast to the allies. It was against precedent, he said, but he justified it on the ground that "we are living in times without precedent." An American would think no apology necessary for such a toast at such a time. In fact, it would have been taken as a matter of course, and its omission would have caused surprise. But it had never been done before at a London banquet, and because it was without precedent it needed explanation and apology.—Hartford Courant.

FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE

GOOD ADVICE FOR THE BOYS

Two Paragraphs Could Well Become a Part of Equipment of Every Employee of Every Organization.

"Always be courteous and willing to do all you can for everyone, whether a member or not. If he is not a member, show him the spirit of the organization; if he is a member, let him keep the opinion you gave him when he was not a member."

"Learn as much as you can about the job just ahead of you, and show the fellow just behind as much about yours as you can."

We had an office boy. He came up from Norfolk, Va. He had never done a stroke of work in his life, and so we undertook to train him. In three months he was advanced to a position of telephone operator. He learned to run the typewriter and did neat work. He learned to run the files. He called up committees. He was wanted to do a thousand things a day. Every man was his boss, and with it all he was invariably courteous, cheerful, smiling and efficient. He never spent any time fooling around, he didn't play practical jokes, he didn't esteem himself to be the office comedian, and when he found it necessary to go back home, he left with our very best wishes and honest regrets.

We asked him to set down certain things for the use of his successor, and among them we found two paragraphs quoted above. They are both gems, and they apply not only to this chamber of commerce, but to all businesses and to all men. We are glad, of course, that an office boy perceives the spirit of the chamber of commerce. We are pleased that we have had a hand in training that boy, because wherever he goes, he is going to be well thought of, and we feel that the members of the chamber should know some of the things that were going on in that boy's mind. The two paragraphs quoted above could well become a part of the equipment of every employee of every organization, and would advantage both the employee and the employer.—Official Bulletin, Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

What to Learn.

There are five things in life which we ought to learn. Here they are:

1. Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine.
2. Learn how to tell a helpful story. A well-told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sickroom.
3. Learn to keep your troubles to yourself. The world is too busy to linger over your ills and sorrows.
4. Learn to stop croaking. If you cannot see any good in this world, keep the bad to yourself.
5. Learn to greet your friends with a smile. They carry too many frowns in their own hearts to be bothered with any of yours.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Generous Consideration.

"Have you said your prayers?" asked the mother.

"Of course," replied the child. "And did you ask to be made a better little girl?"

"Yes. And I put in a word for you and father, too."

Linal Descendant.

"Pa, what is a linal descendant?" "A linal descendant is a person who has to fall back on some praiseworthy ancestor for his own importance."

PROTECTION FOR THE BIRDS

Blue Jay Devours Many Grasshoppers, Caterpillars, Bugs, Weevils, Cut-Worms and Other Insects.

Some of our sweet song and insectivorous birds threatened with extinction have at last found sanctuary in God's acres, in the City of Brotherly Love, through the untiring efforts of the Liberty Bell Bird club of the Farm Journal, which has arranged to install bird houses, feeding baskets and bird baths in West Laurel Hill cemetery in Philadelphia. These will be constructed after models most approved by bird families and arranged in an artistic manner to beautify the grounds. The richly colored plumage of the happy songsters will add a bit of brightness to the place of peace, and it is hoped, their songs of thanksgiving will uplift the heavy heart that comes to mourn.

Mr. and Mrs. Bird are very particular tenants, according to the reports of the many members of the Farm Journal Liberty Bell Bird club who have been putting up houses for them to occupy. Complaints are daily received at the headquarters of the club in Philadelphia, that Mr. Robin greatly prefers a house of his own structure, while Mrs. Wren, or the Martins, will look in upon a new bird house built with much care and decide not to take it at all, or if they move in, they will stay a little while, then suddenly leave without notice or apparent reason.

Some older members of the club who are patient bird lovers and students, have found out that bird residents like individuals, have decided tastes in the matter of homes, which must be catered to. It has been discovered that the blue jay, who has established her independent, economic status by the number of grasshoppers, caterpillars, bugs, beetles, cutworms, weevils, ticks and plant lice she consumes is a fierce little militant who demands a separate establishment far removed from any neighbors, with which she refuses to associate. On the other hand, the beautiful purple martin maintains a dove-like disposition in spite of a steady wasp and other aggressive insect diet, and must have company or she will move. She is happiest in a co-operative establishment of some thirty or more apartments. She lives up to the non-resistance theory to such an extent if not protected she is easily driven away by the quarrelsome English sparrow.

SECURE A SUPPLY OF WOOD FOR WINTER

Boys Pulling Stumps—Nothing Makes a Brighter Fire in the Grate Than Old Stumps.

There is no better way of interesting the boys in farm life than to get them started in some part of the work. Let them form clubs of different kinds. Clubs for the protection of birds; clubs for growing pigs, corn and other products. It should not be difficult to get them interested in a club for the purpose of securing an ample supply of wood for the winter. The illustration shows a boys' club in Pennsylvania, actively engaged in pulling stumps. There is nothing more cheery than a bright fire in the grate on a cold winter's night and the old stumps scattered around the average farm are excellent for that purpose. It is a good thing to get up the supply of wood for the winter, before the deep snow comes on. Skid the logs out and haul them down to the house. Roll them in good sized snags handy to the sawmill, if you have one, or to the skidway, if you cut them up with a cross-cut saw. It's nice to have the log-way near the woodhouse, so you can throw the blocks in and split them up in there. If the house is behind the barn or some other building, it will help to keep off the hard winds while you are at work.

Event in American History.
November 24, 1758, marked the evacuation and destruction of Fort Duquesne. A short time previous to this the British had initiated the work of fortification. The French, coming down the Allegheny river from their forts on and near Lake Erie, made a sudden descent on the small British garrison, and the latter was forced to surrender unconditionally. The French and their Indian allies completed the fortification and called it Fort Duquesne. A British force commanded by General Forbes was sent from the east to retake the fortification, and doubtless would have succeeded without the loss of a man had it not been for the impetuous Captain Grant. The fort was blown up while the main force was yet ten miles east of the site of the future great city. They heard a great explosion, saw volumes of smoke, and realized at once that the French and Indians had destroyed the little fortification and had taken to the woods and the rivers.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD
Delicious "Fruit Laxative" Can't Harm Tender Little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels, without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

Helping Kidneys By Clearing Blood
A Function Greatly Assisted By a Well-Known Remedy.

Most readers will be interested to more clearly understand why analysis of urine is so important. In the use of S. S. S. to purify the blood, its action is first purify the blood with S. S. S., so it will enable the blood to pass through the kidneys. They act as filters and excretors. And according to what they allow to pass out in the urine, both as to quantity and materials, the health of the kidneys and the quality of the blood is determined. The catalytic energy forced by S. S. S. is shown in the urine. It is also demonstrated in the skin. And as the blood continues to sweep through the kidneys the dominating nature of S. S. S., acting as it does through all the avenues of elimination, shows marked decrease of disease manifestations as demonstrated by urine analysis. This assistance is a great relief to the kidneys. The body wastes are more evenly distributed to the excretories; their elimination is stimulated by the tonic action afforded the liver, lungs, skin and kidneys. Thus, in cases of rheumatism, cystitis, chronic sore throat, huskiness of voice, bronchitis, asthma and the myriad of other reflex indications of weak kidney action, first purify your blood with S. S. S., so it will enable the tissues to rebuild the cellular strength and regain the normal health.

REPLACE OLD STEPS

Those of Capitol at Washington Reconstructed.
Have Been in Service More Than Eighty Years, and Effects of Time Were Very Plainly Visible to Capitol Visitors.

Weathered and worn by more than eighty years of service, the wide stone steps leading to the east entrance of the capitol at Washington are to be replaced. The wear on the steps, caused by hundreds of thousands of persons climbing them, has been so great that they have become not only unsightly, but also dangerous in their present chipped and battered condition. It is at the bottom of this flight of steps that the president takes the oath of office every four years. When they were set in place in 1830, the senate and house wings had not yet been erected, and the old wooden dome was still a part of the structure. For beginning the present improvement congress appropriated $50,000, but it is expected that at least $75,000 additional will be necessary to complete it. It is interesting to note that when the District of Columbia was originally laid out, it was the belief that the ultimate growth would be to the southeast. It was because of this that the main entrance of the capitol was made to face the east. Contrary to plans, however, the growth took an opposite direction, and years ago necessitated the construction of the west entrance to the capitol, which since that time has been the one chiefly used.—Popular Mechanics.

Protection From Earthquakes.
The problem of protecting against earthquakes in Italy is discussed in a recent memoir by Prof. G. Agamenone, who points out that disasters from this cause are mainly due to faulty construction and bad location of buildings. It appears that after the greater earthquakes of recent times the authorities have formulated rules to insure proper reconstruction, but these have been disregarded on account of the expense entailed and because the danger of another earthquake seemed remote. The author thinks the Italian government should establish a special ministry to control and systematize the work of mitigating the results of earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, flood and other analogous disasters, and should provide state insurance against the losses due to these agencies.—Scientific American.

"To use Kreislner as a stop for bullets seems to me a blasphemy to the art of music—a worse blasphemy than the English countess used toward Paderewski.
"At a great English country house a countess said to Paderewski one rainy afternoon:
"Oh, Mr. Paderewski, you play, don't you?"
"Yes, madam," the master replied.
"Then," said the countess, "would you mind turning my daughter's music?"—New York Tribune.

HOW RESINOL CURED ITCHING SKIN TORMENT

Baltimore, Md., May 23, 1914: "My limbs from knee to ankle were completely covered with eczema for a year. I commenced with several small water pimples, which burst when I scratched them, until they developed into sores, and oozed a yellowish fluid. I hated to go in company. It itched and burned so badly. I had no rest at night. I tried a good many remedies for eczema, both liquid and salve, but they did me no good, only made the skin more rough and scaly. I learned of resinol ointment and resinol soap and tried them, and was relieved of the severe itching and burning AT ONCE, and after a month's steady use was completely cured." (Signed) T. S. Lewis, 1821 Summit St. Resinol soap and resinol ointment are sold by all druggists.—Adv.

SMOOTHED PATH OF LOVE

American Naval Captain Rose Nobly to Occasion When Confronted With Unusual Problem.

The "floating court" is an institution founded by the United States government for administering judgment in the far North. An interesting example of the unusual problems that confronted Capt. A. J. Henderson, one of the first judges of the court, is told by Mr. Walter Noble Burns in the Wide World Magazine:
One day, at Point Hope, there appeared before the court held on the Thetis, Captain Henderson's ship, an old Eskimo and his wife. They were accompanied by their pretty daughter and two stalwart young men, who were suitors for her hand. In choicest Eskimo, that sounded like a series of explosions of vocal dynamite, the venerable father poured a voluble tale into the ears of the interpreter.

"This man, he says," began the interpreter, "these two feller want this gal for wife. One feller he offer a rifle, ten-pound whalebone, six walrus tusk, a dog team and sled. The other feller, he give kayak, two reindeer a bearskin, and six fox skin. This gal the old man's only daughter. He old, and he want good trade. But he not know which he best take. He say maybe you tell him."

Captain Henderson is no Cupid—he stands six feet two and weighs 250 pounds—but he determined to essay the role of Cupid's first assistant.

"You love this girl?" he asked one suitor.
"Yes," replied the interpreter, "he love her."
"And do you love her?" the captain asked the other.

"Yes, he love her, too."
The captain looked at the girl, who was a pretty little thing, something over four feet high, with coal-black hair plastered down over her temples and sloe-back, roguish eyes. Let no one doubt the vital beauty of Eskimo maid in the flush of youth and health.

"Here," said the captain to the girl, "which one of these men do you want?"

The interpreter put the question. The maiden's eyes grew brighter, her cheeks a deeper crimson, and a coy smile wreathed her lips. She stepped over to one of the young men unhesitatingly and touched him on the arm.
"This one," she said, and there was no need for the interpreter to translate.
"All right," said the captain, with a roar of laughter, "take him."

And he married them on the spot. Straight from the ship back to the village the newly wedded couple paddled, to set up housekeeping to live happily, no doubt, ever afterward. The bride's father touched off a few more explosions of vocal dynamite into the interpreter's ear.
"He say," declared the interpreter to Captain Henderson, "he satisfied."

10 CENT "CASCARETS" IF BILIOUS OR COSTIVE

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—They Work While You Sleep.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. A Cascaret tonight will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

COST OF ARMING EUROPE

Forty Billion Dollars Has Been Spent for This Purpose in Twenty-Five Years.

There is no escaping taxation abroad. It is driven right into the vitals of the people, rich and poor alike. Like death, it has to be. In the last 25 years the six great military nations, England, France, Germany, Austria, Italy and Russia, have spent about forty billion dollars to get ready to fight one another. None of them has had a single war with any of its neighbors during that time.

Just stop and think what $40,000,000,000 means, writes Albert W. Atwood in the Saturday Evening Post. The farms of the United States are worth only $40,000,000,000. The total wealth of England is only about $60,000,000,000. Forty billions is approximately three times all the money in the world. Yet every dollar has been spent merely getting ready for a war that good people really thought would never come. It did come more swiftly, suddenly and murderously than the wildest jingo had conceived possible, and it is going to cost something, too.

Now, you can't raise $40,000,000,000 without going after it hard. A great statesman, describing the tax collectors of Europe to the French chamber of deputies, said: "They have been obliged to resort to an intolerable espionage and a degrading system of informers. Their question caters, neighbors, servants, children; they keep account of dinners that are given and the cigars that are offered to guests."

There is no limit to the financial resources of a European power, because there is no form of wealth that is left intact. It may be only a little annoying and mostly amusing to the American tourist to have a quarter of a cent added to his hotel bill to help out the government in whose boundaries he happens to be. But there is nothing funny about the burden of militarism to the very rich continental who in some cases pays more than a fifth of his income to the government.

If you had to live on an income of $100 a year you would hardly care to pay taxes, and yet in Saxony, for example, an income of more than 400 marks is taxed.

True, the income tax is only one mark—23.8 cents—until your income exceeds $125 a year; but when you have to live on less than $2 a week and pay local taxes as well it is no droll or comic matter to pay 23.8 cents to the nation, especially as the government uses something like two-thirds of your mark either to pay interest on debts incurred for past wars—in which quite likely your grandfather was killed or to keep up an army which you will have to join in any case when your ruler decides to make you fight again—and perhaps be killed or wounded.

Heard General Sherman Say It.

Recently someone who seemed to know issued a denial of the prevalent impression that Gen. W. T. Sherman said "war is hell." J. P. Francis of Nickerson declares he heard General Sherman say it. He writes: "I never understood that General Sherman used the term 'war is hell' in any of his orders or official correspondence, but did use the term in a public address at a soldiers' reunion at Columbus, O., in 1880. The writer was seated near the speaker's stand and recollects the occasion which called the famous expression from the general. General Sherman, in his address, referred to a particular military feat which called (on part of the troops selected to perform the task assigned them) for heroic courage to accomplish the task successfully. And when he closed the narration the militia boys gave a hearty cheer. When the applause subsided the general looked down at the militia and said, 'Boys, you may think war is great sport, but I say, war is hell.'"

When Wellington Was General.

The greatness of Wellington is never more admirably remembered than in times of strife—and perhaps never more usefully quoted. The duke one day wanted a bridge constructed, and the officer of the royal engineers whom he consulted on the matter reported that it could not be managed. Another officer was sent for, from another division of the army, with the result that the task was duly accomplished. This caused the duke to put the following in "Orders": "He who in war fails to do what he undertakes, may always plead the accidents which invariably attend military affairs; but he who declares a thing to be impossible, which is subsequently accomplished, registers his own incapacity." Another "wise saying" of Wellington comes from another reader, and it is appropriate to the moment. He was asked what was the best test of a great general, and he answered: "To know when to retreat; and to dare to do it."—London Chronicle.

EUROPEAN WAR SHATTERS KING COTTON'S THRONE

FLEECE STAPLE MUST PAY RANSOM INTO THE COFFERS OF WAR.

Nation Rings With Cries of Stricken Industry.

By Peter Radford

Lecturer National Farmers' Union.

King Cotton has suffered more from the European war than any other agricultural product on the American continent. The shells of the belligerents have burst over his throne, frightening his subjects and shattering his markets, and, panic-stricken, the nation cries out "God save the king!"

People from every walk of life have contributed their mite toward rescue work. Society has danced before the king; milady has decreed that the family wardrobe shall contain only cotton goods; the press has pleaded with the public to "buy a bale"; bankers have been formulating holding plans; congress and legislative bodies have deliberated over relief measures; statesmen and writers have grown eloquent expounding the inalienable rights of "His Majesty" and presenting schemes for preserving the financial integrity of the stricken staple, but the sword of Europe has proved mightier than the pen of America in fixing value upon this product of the sunny south. Prices have been bayoneted, values riddled and markets decimated by the battling hosts of the eastern hemisphere until the American farmer has suffered a war loss of $400,000,000, and a bale of cotton brave enough to enter a European port must pay a ransom of half its value or go to prison until the war is over.

Hope of the Future Lies in Co-operation.

The Farmers' Union, through the columns of the press, wants to thank the American people for the friendship, sympathy and assistance given the cotton farmers in the hour of distress and to direct attention to co-operative methods necessary to permanently assist the marketing of all farm products.

The present emergency presents as grave a situation as ever confronted the American farmer and from the viewpoint of the producer, would seem to justify extraordinary relief measures, even to the point of bending the constitution and straining business rules in order to lift a portion of the burden off the backs of the farmer, for unless something is done to check the invasion of the war forces upon the cotton fields, the pathway of the European pestilence on this continent will be strewn with mortgaged homes and famine and poverty will stalk over the southland, filling the highways of industry with refugees and the bankruptcy court with prisoners.

All calamities teach us lessons and the present crisis serves to illuminate the frailties of our marketing methods and the weakness of our credit system, and out of the financial anguish and travail of the cotton farmer will come a volume of discussion and a mass of suggestions and finally a solution of this, the biggest problem in the economic life of America. If, indeed, we have not already laid the foundation for at least temporary relief.

More Pharaohs Needed in Agriculture.

Farm products have no credit and perhaps can never have on a permanent and satisfactory basis unless we build warehouses, cold storage plants, elevators, etc., for without storage and credit facilities, the south is compelled to dump its crop on the market at harvest time. The Farmers' Union in the cotton producing states have for the past ten years persistently advocated the construction of storage facilities. We have built during this period 2,000 warehouses with a capacity of approximately 4,000,000 bales and looking backward the results would seem encouraging, but looking forward, we are able to house less than one-third of the crop and warehouses without a credit system lose 90 per cent of their usefulness. The problem is a gigantic one—too great for the farmer to solve unaided. He must have the assistance of the banker, the merchant and the government.

In production we have reached the high water mark of perfection in the world's history, but our marketing methods are most primitive. In the dawn of history we find agriculture plowing with a forked stick but with a system of warehouses under governmental supervision that made the Egyptians the marvel of civilization, for who has not admired the vision of Joseph and applauded the wisdom of Pharaoh for storing the surplus until demanded by the consumer, but in this age we have too many Josephs who dream and not enough Pharaohs who build.

THE proposal to help raise the threatened three million dollar deficit in State revenue by imposing a special tax on each saloon in California, a proposal which is said to be wholly agreeable to the liquor interests of the State, merits the vigorous opposition of every patriot. This on two grounds. First, it would be economically wrong. The saloon already pays a United States tax and a local tax. A hundred dollars special tax on each saloon is more than any legitimate business should be asked to carry. While the big liquor men may consent to this tax, it will hardly seem fair to the saloon men, many of whom, owing to aroused prohibition sentiment, are hardly making ends meet as it is.

But the saloon business is not a legitimate business. It has no standing in law. A special saloon tax for State revenue is therefore morally wrong. Think of the public schools of California supported by saloon money! And think of the moral idiocy of placing before a public enemy already doubly entrenched another barbed wire entanglement to embarrass the inevitable attack of public opinion!

The saloon is going. It is a question, as John Drew suggests, whether in two years there will be any saloon in California to be taxed. The saloon ought to go, and no amount of State revenue will justify an extended lease of life to the evil-working institution.

OLD SETTLERS' DAY

Committees Preparing for Big Annual Celebration February 22

Iowa Association Will Be Here En-masse

Preparations are already on foot for the biggest celebration of "Old Settlers' Day," February 22nd, ever held.

The executive committee of the Iowa Association met at the St. James hotel Saturday and accepted an invitation to hold their annual meeting here on Feb. 22nd. They will enjoy the "Old Settlers' Day" program in the forenoon and repair to the W. C. T. U. dining rooms at noon where dinner will be served followed by after dinner speeches and routine business. Further notice will be given later.

The Rev. W. W. Willard, pastor of the First Congregational Church of San Jose, has been engaged to deliver the address of the day.

Local and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Shelley of San Jose visited at the C. H. Whitman home Wednesday.

Gordon Ainsley entered the Montezuma Boys School last week and is enjoying the life there very much so far.

Tickets for the course of entertainments given by the Epworth League of the Methodist church may be had at the Bank or Press office. Buy early.

Prof. and Mrs. E. E. Barnard, Williams Bay, Wisconsin, arrived Wednesday for a short visit with their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Whitman. Prof. Barnard is one of the astronomers at Yerkes Observatory.

Rev. G. E. Atkinson has been invited to speak at the annual banquet of the Bay Region Theological seminary, Feb. 5th. There are two other speakers for the occasion, Rev. H. H. McQuilkin being one.

Miss Louise Fitch arrived from Berkeley yesterday for a short visit with her cousin, Mrs. J. E. Palmer. Miss Fitch is a sister of George Fitch, the noted author who is one of the writers for the American Magazine.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Sanford who have been visiting their nephew, W. I. Morton, and were expecting to visit other relatives about the State until summer, were called to their home at Mantoville, Minn., by the sudden illness of their son. They left Friday.

The Ladies Guild held an all day session at the church parlors yesterday. This was the annual meeting and officers were elected for the ensuing year. After the business hour, the ladies tied three comforters for Dr. Atkinson's hospital in Siskiyou county.

Little Ellis De Selle narrowly escaped very serious if not fatal injury Monday afternoon. Coming from school he climbed upon the tongue of the "trailer" of two wagons loaded with wood and fell off under it. The front wheel ran over his hand but rolled him over in such a way that he escaped the hind wheel. Mrs. Sawyer and Mrs. Fawcett both saw the accident and lent "first aid," after which Mr. Sawyer carried him to his father. The doctor examined the injuries and found two fingers quite badly crushed, with the nails torn off, and one ear skinned, but apparently no internal troubles. The lad is indeed fortunate that he came out of it so well.

Theories That Don't Work

Among the other theories that have not worked in practice are these:

1. That our modern implements of war, being so terribly destructive, have made war impossible.
2. That financiers are the real masters of Europe.
3. That the spread of Socialism in Europe has made the rulers afraid to fight.—Kansas City Star.

Worth Knowing

The editor of the Evening Star was deeply engrossed in his work, when he was suddenly interrupted by the office boy, who remarked:
"There's a tramp at the door. Mr. Hyde, and he says he ain't had nothing to eat for six days."
"Fetch him in," said the editor. "If we can find out how he does it we can run the paper for another week."—Lippincott's Magazine.

How We Get the News

Day before yesterday a perfectly nice lady called us up with tears in her voice and reproved us for not mentioning the fact that she had a friend visiting her last week. We told her that she had not let us know anything about it and that therefore, we did not know that she had a visitor. Then she said, "Well, you should have known. I thought you were running a newspaper." Wouldn't that rattle your slats? Some people think that an editor ought to be a cross between Argus and Anna Eva Fay. They seem to think that our five senses are augmented by a sixth that lets us know everything that happens, even if we see, hear, feel, taste or smell it not. Dear lady, editors are only human or at least, almost human. If you have a friend visiting you, if you are going away, or have returned from a visit out of town, if Johnnie falls and breaks his arm, if your husband chops his toe instead of a stick of wood; if anything happens that makes you glad, or sad, happy or mad, call us up. Tell us about it. That's the way to get it in the paper.

Exposition Notes

Preparations for the largest government exhibit ever made by one nation at an exposition are nearing completion in six of the exhibit palaces at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. The display is that of the United States and is to occupy all told 173,000 square feet of exhibit space. Its total cost will be in the neighborhood of $500,000.

Nearly every one of the departments of the Federal Government is to be represented, the exhibits being distributed among the appropriate palaces. In the Palace of Mines and Metallurgy the Bureau of Mines is constructing a series of model mines, beneath the floor. In the Palace of Machinery will be a display of the manufacture of arms and armament and all of the technical and mechanical side of the army and navy operations; here also will be the exhibit of the light-house department and a miniature model of a naval drydock. The largest display will be in the Liberal Arts building where more than 66,000 square feet of space have been allotted to the government. Exhibits will also be made extensively in the palaces of Agriculture, Education and Food Products.

Increased exhibit space has been applied for within the past week by the Cuban government commission. The appropriation is $250,000 and the exhibit will include a collection of magnificent Cuban royal palms, 60 to 70 feet in height, and growing pine-apples and banana plants in fruit.

From Central and South America will be shown in the Palace of Horticulture orchids in great variety of color and form; from Hawaii are coming tree ferns and banana plants; France and England are sending rare varieties of hot house plants and Japan will add to the horticultural display in the palace a collection of lilies.
